

Project Management

Your projects can properly perform using mib Heinen's the project management.

We describe Project Management (PM) based on DIN (German Institute for Standardization), standard 69901 under the general summary of management responsibilities. The standard describes tasks which comprise of management organization,- techniques - and, resources for the initiation, definition, planning, management and completion of projects.

But why is project management necessary? While many companies develop for their projects own project managers, they often do not provide the necessary work environment, so that projects cannot be implemented properly. It's not only managing tasks, the biggest challenge is to manage people involved!

The target of project management is the trouble-free implementation of projects leading to the improvement of the processes in companies. We as mib Heinen pay attention to the project objectives from the outset to clearly define and accordingly create a precise schedule for inspection.

Project management is running across all branches and industries. Whether in the form of large-scale project management or program management.

So it does not matter what kind of project it is. With the support of proper coaching, mib Heinen optimizes your project and provide a safe, based on a schedule implementation within the budget. With the help of project management, we accelerate your projects to business improvement. mib Heinen's four phases of project management are:

Definition –	What is the objective? What are the opportunities and risks? Also looks at contents to be determined.
Planning –	Create tasks plan, capacity plan, among others.
Implementation –	Control of project progress, respond on disruptive events and frequent reports to the board.
Conclusion	How to solve the challenge
